

Douglas Quits Foundation as Heat Continues

Congressman Demands He Also Resign From Bench

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice William O. Douglas' resignation under fire as paid head of a foundation linked with Las Vegas casinos has fueled new cries in Congress for a full probe of his outside income.

Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, said Douglas should resign from the Supreme Court where he has served for 30 years.

The white-haired jurist bowed out Friday from his $12,000-plus post as president of the Albert Parvin Foundation which recently sold for $2 million its stock in a firm owning three Las Vegas gambling casinos.

Douglas' action came a week after Justice Abe Fortas resigned from the Supreme Court in a storm of criticism over a $20,000 check from the family foundation of jailed financier Louis E. Wolfson.

Meets With Mitchell

Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., a leading critic of Douglas' foundation ties, met privately late Thursday with Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, but wouldn't disclose what they discussed.

Williams refused Friday to say whether he had asked for a Justice Department investigation and said he had no comment on the session.

Douglas, who underwent a minor heart operation last June, told a newsman, "I've been trying to get a replacement for the job for about a year since I had the surgery and wasn't quite up to par."

The Parvin Foundation said the 70-year-old justice had written more than a month ago that he would resign, but a meeting April 9 was called off when Douglas was hospitalized.

Rep. Gross said the time Douglas took "to sever his connections with a foundation endowed by gambling casino money simply means that he is not competent to serve on the Supreme Court bench."

Gross snapped "His resignation from the court forthwith is the announcement he should have made."

Operating as Usual

U.S. Disclaims New Offensive

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. military command said today it has not stepped up offensive activity in Vietnam but is continuing to operate as it has for many months.

Asked about a statement made by White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler Friday that President Nixon had ordered Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, U.S. commander in Vietnam to carry out military action with "a minimum loss of American lives," a spokesman for Abrams said:

"A cardinal principle of U.S. military operations is to accomplish the mission with minimum casualties. It should be noted that our operations are always conducted with maximum use of firepower since this principle is an inherent part of all training and operations. No specific orders have been issued to reduce casualties."

In military operations B52 bombers attacked North Vietnamese bases north of Saigon and in the central highlands near Dak To, where heavy fighting was reported during the past 24 hours.

South Vietnamese forces lost 43 troops killed and 75 wounded in two fights 44 miles northeast of Saigon and 10 miles southwest of Dak To.

South Vietnamese headquarters claimed 174 North Vietnamese soldiers were killed, about 100 of them by supporting artillery and U.S. jet bombers.

U.S. casualties in the fight northwest of Saigon were two killed.

Sixty B52 bombers dumped about 1,800 tons of explosives on North Vietnamese base areas, some of them within two miles of the Cambodian border, during the 24-hour reporting period ending at noon today.

The heaviest air raids were concentrated in war zones C and D, northwest and northeast of Saigon. The Communist Command uses these as staging areas for attacks on allied bases along the corridors leading to Saigon.

The immediate aim of the strikes was to take pressure off the major provincial capitals of Tay Ninh City, 50 miles northwest of Saigon, and Xuan Loc, 40 miles northeast of South Vietnam's capital city.

North Vietnamese forces, meanwhile, launched a heavy attack on a South Vietnamese outpost 55 miles north of Saigon Friday, but U.S. reinforcements beat them back.

U.S. headquarters said 53 North Vietnamese soldiers were killed, while American casualties were two killed. South Vietnamese forces suffered several men wounded, but none killed.

South Vietnamese rangers operating in the central highlands 10 miles southwest of Dak To reported killing 35 North Vietnamese soldiers, while suffering only light casualties. The fight Friday was in the same general area the bombers hit.

American headquarters reported eight significant enemy rocket and mortar attacks overnight, four of which were against U.S. forces and installations. Casualties and damage were reported light.

South Vietnamese headquarters said seven rounds of mortar shells hit the provincial capital of Keim Phong in the Mekong Delta 64 miles southwest of Saigon, killing one civilian and wounding nine others.

In Paris, meanwhile North Vietnam's chief negotiator, Xuan Thuy, left for Hanoi today for consultations which could be crucial to the Paris peace talks.

He departed after repeating earlier declarations that unconditional withdrawal of U.S. troops and the ouster of the Saigon government are essential for progress in the peace talks.

Allied diplomats believed his trip is connected with President Nixon's eight-point peace plan, but Thuy described it as routine. He said he already had made his position clear on Nixon's proposal at the last two sessions of the conference.

His trip apparently was decided upon suddenly after last Thursday's weekly session of the talks. He had been scheduled to speak Sunday to an organization of some 2,000 Vietnamese living here.

Thuy's trip is regarded as important because the Hanoi government has a member of its politburo, Le Duc Tho, in Paris as a high-level adviser and strategist. Tho arrived there shortly before the presentation of the NLF 10-point plan May 8.

The presentation of the Nixon plan confronted North Vietnam and the NLF with a number of problems.

One was whether to continue insisting on dealing with the Front's plan as an indivisible package or accept the U.S. appeal for immediate discussions on parts of the two plans that might produce agreement.

A broader problem was whether to enter into secret talks with the South Vietnamese government on a political settlement.

Spacemen Head Home From Moon

Mighty Engine Does Its Job

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Apollo 10 astronauts ended their moon odyssey when they flew a fragile lunar lander vehicle to within 9.4 miles of the surface to certify the touchdown site.

"Blackest Black"

Air Force Col. Thomas P. Stafford and Navy Cmdr. John W. Young and Eugene A. Cernan fired Apollo 10's engine at 5:25 a.m. CDT to dart out of moon orbit and start the quarter million-mile homeward journey.

The astronauts are to cover a 246,283-mile return path in 54 hours, splashing down in the Pacific Ocean Monday.

They had circled the moon for 2½ days during which they cleared the way for two American astronauts to land on the moon in July.

Suspenseful Minutes

The critical firing occurred behind the moon's backside, out of radio contact. Mission control center in Houston waited a suspenseful nine minutes before Apollo 10 rounded the edge and flashed the reassuring radio signals.

"We are returning to Earth," Stafford announced, and the astronauts emphasized their eagerness by playing a tape recording of "Going Back to Houston."

"The burn was absolutely beautiful," Stafford reported. "And we've got an absolutely beautiful view of the moon."

The astronauts beamed the view to Earthlings, pointing their color television camera out the window to capture the desolate desert satellite receding in the distance.

View of Horizon

They panned the camera across the surface and showed a clear view of the horizon with thousands of jagged craters in the foreground.

"Fantastic... incredible... unbelievable," the astronauts uttered over and over again as they watched the moon grow smaller. Viewers on Earth could agree.

"That thing is getting rounder and rounder and smaller and smaller all the time," Cernan said.

Within an hour, the full disk of the moon was visible, but the astronauts used their zoom lens to zero in on particular features.

Several times they showed features in the Sea of Tranquility where two American astronauts hope to land in July. Stafford and Young had cleared the way for that landing Thursday when they flew a fragile lunar lander vehicle to within 9.4 miles of the surface to certify the touchdown site.

how far we've come in a few years and makes you wonder how much farther we'll go in the next few years.

"You've often heard the nursery rhyme about the man in the moon," Stafford said. "We didn't see one here... Pretty soon there will be two men on the moon."

"If there were people down there," Young interjected, "they have a lot of rocks to play with."

"This satellite of ours, this moon of ours, really had a rough beginning back there

'Ole Snoop' Plays Footsie

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo 10 astronauts had an uneasy haunted feeling during their final laps around the moon Saturday.

A chunk of metal junk kept showing up nearby as the spaceship hurtled along on its 3,700 mile orbit some 70 miles above the lunar surface. It was the discarded lower rocket stage for "Snoopy," their moon lander spacecraft.

"It's highly improbable—a collision," radioed Air Force Col. Thomas P. Stafford, "but it would sure ruin your whole day if it happened."

Mission control at Houston was reassuring.

"Ole Snoop's just a good ole hound dog, Tom," said capsule communicator Charlie Duke. "He'll probably try to follow you back home."

Eccentric Orbit

Despite the levity, mission control was scrambling—checking every possible way to pinpoint the eccentric orbit of the abandoned bit of moon lander.

"We sure don't like to be around here playing footsie with that rascal," said Stafford.

Snoopy was the radio name given the moon lander which carried Stafford and Navy Cmdr. Eugene A. Cernan on a separate moon orbit that dipped within 9.4 miles of the surface.

The lower rocket stage of the lander was abandoned Thursday when the cabin stage of the craft, which had its own separate propulsion system, rocketed back to the command ship.

After docking with the command ship, the astronauts cast the cabin stage of Snoopy adrift. Its rockets were switched on and it "took off like a scalded fox," headed for the sun. But the lower stage was still out there, tumbling in its own rough orbit.

"Originally, we thought he might be out of plane (on a different flying level) but that sure didn't look very far out of plane to me when we finally found him, and he's getting awfully close," said Stafford.

"There he is!" he added, "right below us... and that rascal is right in plane with us."

Mission control later said it was believed that the sighting reported by Stafford would be Snoopy's closest approach—and that the bit of dangerous junk would wind up some 500 to 600 miles behind the spaceship.

Search Continues For Stolen Plane

LONDON (AP)—British and American planes resumed their search of the Atlantic today for a U.S. Air Force C130 transport that was stolen from its base near here Friday by a 23-year-old Air Force ground mechanic.

Sgt. Paul Meyer of Poquoson, Va., was said to have been homesick and "under the influence of drink" before he took off in the big $2.3 million troop carrier from Mildenhall Air Base, 20 miles north of London.

The plane was last seen flying over the English Channel west of the Isle of Wight, and Meyer told his wife by radio-telephone he was having trouble with the controls. He was not heard from again, and the Air Force said it assumed he went down in the Atlantic.

Contacts Base
After eluding radar trackers, Meyer surprised officials looking for him by contacting the base at Mildenhall and asking to speak to his wife Mariamne at Langley Field, Va., his home base.

The call was arranged, and Meyer told his wife, "Don't leave the house. I'm coming home."

The Air Force has released only one other excerpt from the 10-minute tape recording of the conversation.

"I've been having trouble with the auto pilot," he said. "Please leave me alone for about five minutes. I've got trouble."

Five minutes later, nearly two hours after Meyer took off, a U.S. F100 fighter pilot who had spotted the transport heading toward the Atlantic lost it in thick clouds and bad weather. Ships searched the area during the night but found no trace of the plane before the air search resumed.

Meyer had only enough fuel to keep him aloft about nine hours, and Air Force officers said they doubted whether he had the ability to land the plane safely. The sergeant had had some experience flying light aircraft and taxied the big turboprop transport down the runway as part of his regular duty as its crew chief.

President, Ambassador Joke

White House Concert Filled With (Laughter)

WASHINGTON (AP) — It might be a good idea to appoint the tuba player an assistant secretary of state, the Soviet ambassador said.

"because his notes sounded much better than the notes we exchange in a diplomatic way."

"(Laughter)," said the trans-script provided by the White House.

"But this, of course, is a joke," added Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin.

The tuba player and 53 other members of the University of Minnesota Band concert ensemble, just back from a sevenweek tour of the Soviet Union, had been playing in the White House Rose Garden before an audience of about 100.

President Nixon also was impressed by the tuba solo of Stanford Freese of Edina, Minn.

"When you hear a band like this play so well, including somebody who can play a tuba like I didn't think a trumpet could be played—you wonder are they really amateurs—are they really students," Nixon said.

Then laughingly he revealed there was a "ringer" in the band. He introduced the second flutist, Mrs. Frank Benciscutto, wife of the conductor. She was sitting in for the regular player because he has just been drafted.

"We will do our very best to get him back to school as quickly as we can," Nixon promised.

Dobrynin also commented on the second flutist.

"I didn't know in the American family the wife played second things," he joked.

The concert of U.S. and Russian music prompted Nixon to remark that "the Russian people and the American people are not natural enemies," that they "are natural friends."

Criticize Overemphasis on College for Disadvantaged

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — The state's colleges and high schools have been taken to task for misdirection of educationally disadvantaged youths — black, white and red.

The continuing emphasis of colleges that a college education is the only key to a successful and happy life, and the all-too-frequent tendency to ignore all but the college-bound student by high school counselors came under heated attack from two state educational officials.

Thomas Cheeks and Philip Lerman, both of Milwaukee and members of the Wisconsin Coordinating Council for Higher Education, issued the blasts at a committee meeting of the CCHE.

The emphasis from the college and high school officials often results in the recruitment and eventual failure of disadvantaged youths in college training programs, the men agreed.

Fail Programs

Often many of the students who do fail such programs are those who should have received other forms of education, the men charged.

Cheeks, a Negro, is an official in the Milwaukee Public School System. Lerman is vice chairman of the State Board of Vocational, Technical and Adult Education.

In making their charges they drew the quick support of their fellow CCHE members on higher educational aids committee of the coordinating council.

The blasts were made while defending proposed aid programs for the coming two years which have been all but doomed during the current fiscal battle going on in the state Legislature over the size of the 1969-71 budget and the resulting tax increase for state residents.

Double Effort

Cheeks said that directing disadvantaged students to colleges can have the double effect of producing little for the student who has little to gain from the experience, and of producing little for society as well.

Pointing to the black disadvantaged, he said that when a black person earns a doctorate in a technical field he becomes a teacher, rather than going back into society.

"We've got more black Ph.D.'s in this state than we have black plumbers," he said.

"Black people are talking about starting their own construction company. Who are they going to hire?" Cheeks added.

"The road to stability, the road to having something good, is just as good through the technical schools as it is through the so-called 'higher education' schools," said Lerman.

Technical schools are as good as universities in teaching technical subjects, said Lerman. And they are better at preparing students for employment, he stressed.

State University Regent President W. Roy Kopp of Platteville agreed with many of the charges, and said that the aids package apparently doomed in the legislature was aimed at helping educational disadvantaged youth of all colors go to all levels of advanced schooling in the state.

Can't Ignore Plight

"The problem is still with us and we can't ignore the plight of the disadvantaged," said Kopp.

He said that all of the students of the state needing aid are being penalized because 94 black students "got out of hand" in the November, 1968 disturbance at Oshkosh State University.

"For every student who misbehaves at Oshkosh there are thousands in the state who need some help. It isn't just the black students in the state, but everyone else as well," said Kopp.

"We are going to have to tell the legislature that in America we have a choice," said Cheeks.

"They can invest the money or create an expense account — an expense account for repressive tactics.

"You can have your choice in the state of Wisconsin. Milwaukee and Wisconsin still have a chance, when Chicago and Washington and Detroit have terrific problems," said Cheeks. "Our out is to invest some money. Unless you give the people a background they aren't going to be able to compete."

"I know a woman who has 12 sons. They are not dumb. They just need exposure, and if we, the people, don't give them that exposure, then we are going to have to repress them."

Restoration of UWGB Funds Being Pushed

Group Opposes State Budget Cuts, Backs Amendment

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Efforts are being carried out this weekend to push the restoration of an additional $200,000 for the proposed budget for University of Wisconsin-Green Bay development during the 1969-71 biennium.

The funds were proposed for land acquisition at the campus, and were approved by Gov. Warren P. Knowles but cut from his recommended budget level by the legislature's joint committee on finance.

The $200,000 is a part of $2.2 million of state tax funds which has been pushed for restoration from a $12.8 million state tax cut level in building commission funding recommended by the finance committee.

Making the recommendation, in the form of a substitute amendment in the state senate, are Sens. Robert P. Knowles, R-New Richmond, Walter Hollander, R-Rosendale, and Holger Rasmussen, R-Spooner.

Opposes Cuts

Hollander, chairman of the finance committee, is opposed to the sizable cuts proposed by his conservative-dominated unit.

The Hollander amendment, as it is called, would take the place of the finance committee's budget bill in Senate deliberations and restore all but $47 million of the more than $160 million which the finance committee cut from Gov. Knowles' record-high $1.6 billion budget proposals.

Without the $200,000 proposed for additional land acquisition at the Green Bay campus, the

45,000 Soldiers to be Trained at Guard Camp

SPARTA, Wis. (AP) — About 45,000 soldiers, drawing an estimated $6.6 million in pay, will be trained at Camp McCoy this summer, according to the newspaper at the military post.

Coming to the western Wisconsin facility will be units from Illinois, Minnesota, Iowa and North Dakota, as well as Wisconsin.

The combined National Guard and enlisted reserve payroll will total about $600,000 in May and about $2 million per month for June, July and August as an average of 5,000 soldiers pour into the camp each week.

enlargement and rounding out of the campus as planned would be stymied for at least two more years.

Before heading home for the weekend, the Senate Republican caucus split in an 11-11 vote on whether to first take up the Hollander amendment for consideration or whether to start with the base of the finance committee's budget, and simply make additions to it.

Seek Vote

Intensive efforts are being carried out this weekend to win votes for the threatened program.

It is considered far less likely that the site acquisition funds would be restored to the budget finally passed by the Senate if items are considered on an individual basis, rather than as a part of an entire substitute, such as the Hollander amendment.

If the Hollander amendment can be brought to the floor for consideration before the alternative route is attempted, there is thought to be a good chance of passage.

Senate Democrats have informally agreed not to try to formulate their own substitute, but intend to back the Hollander amendment if they get the opportunity.

Appointments Available at Academies

Rep John W. Byrnes today argued high school juniors interested in appointment to West Point or Annapolis in 1970 to contact him now for information.

He said his congressional district will have vacancies at both academies in 1970. The district's quota at the Air Force Academy will be filled, eliminating 1970 appointments there.

Byrnes said his appointments to the academies are based entirely upon the results of a competition consisting of a series of tests conducted by the Civil Service Commission and the Academies.

"Chances of appointment for those who can qualify physically and academically are excellent," Byrnes said, "in view of the Academies' policy of selecting additional young men from qualified alternate lists."

Basic requirements for entering the competition, Byrnes said, are residence in the 8th district, good physical condition, good high school academic record and over 17 years of age but not yet 22 on July 1, 1970.

Information can be obtained by writing to Rep. John W. Byrnes, 2206 House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515. Deadline for receiving applications is October 1, 1969.

Airport Manager Defends Size of Proposed Terminal

'Winnebago Facility Designed to Avoid Green Bay's Problems'

BY DON CASTONIA
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

OSHKOSH — Plans for the new Winnebago County Airport terminal building are an effort to avoid the problems faced by Brown County and Madison. Michael T. Brock, airport manager, said Friday.

Brock also indicated that the entire 92,000 square foot terminal probably would not be constructed in one project. He said the object was to insure adequate terminal space for passenger traffic in the 1990's.

Brock's comments were in response to statements by Theron Clark, Manager of Austin Straubel Field at Green Bay, and Robert Skuld, manager of Madison Municipal Airport, that the proposed Winnebago County Airport terminal appeared "ambitious" in view of projected passenger use.

Skuld also had revealed a Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) letter in which Winnebago County was asked to update its airport master plan and particularly to reconsider the proposed location of the terminal building.

'To Avoid Trouble'

Brock noted that both Madison and Green Bay have nearly new terminal buildings and that Green Bay is doubling the size of its terminal while Madison is considering scrapping its terminal and building a new one.

"This is what we want to avoid," Brock said. He is preparing figures to show how much of the proposed terminal building is public space and how much would be in leased, revenue-producing area.

Just giving the total square feet in not a true picture, Brock said. He indicated North Central Airlines would be using considerably more space than now.

Louis Griedl Jr., North Central station manager, said the airline would probably request "five or six times" the present 1,365 square feet they now occupy.

The airport manager also felt the air line probably would not ask to have the entire 92,000 square feet built at the present time. The total package includes the main complex and two, second-level passenger holding and loading gates.

Brock said North Central has requested one second-level loading area immediately and an option on a second gate. It may be possible he said, to delay construction of the second loading area.

Construction Timetable

Also, construction could be delayed on a portion of the main building designed to house office space on the first floor and a portion of the restaurant on the second floor.

Brock said a terminal site study was conducted in 1967 by Howard Needles Tammen and Bergendoff, the county's airport consultant firm, and other sites closer to the new north-south runway were considered.

Those sites were rejected, he said, because they were not economically feasible or practical. Brock noted that if the terminal were moved south and to the west side of the north-south runway, a new taxiway would have to be built for the runway.

To move the terminal south of the east-west runway, to the east of the north-south runway, would result in almost no public access to the building, he said.

Brock admitted that 25 or 30 years from now a different location for the terminal may be desirable but the present location was the best for the near future.

Part of the FAA request for a new site study apparently was partially based on the belief the east-west runway could not handle the weight of DC-9 jets and that the terminal was too far from the north-south runway.

FAA referred to the east-west runway as having a weight capability of 60,000 pounds. The runway was rebuilt several years ago to carry 125,000 pounds.

Two Germans Charged With Mail Fraud

Promoters of 'Free Vacations' Arrested By Postal Inspectors

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Some 57,000 persons across the nation have been promised vacations which the U.S. attorney's office says they'll never get — and two German nationals have been charged with mail fraud.

Each of the vacation trip "winners" was asked to pay a $25 registration fee to a Hollywood firm, to be refunded on departure for either Acapulco or Hawaii, Assistant U.S. Atty. Edward J. Wallins said Wednesday.

Wallins said any suggestion that two men running the company might be able to provide 57,000 free vacations of the sort advertised was "preposterous." He said Hans George Aust and Roland Graber, both 27, operating Deluxe Vacationer Co. made false claims in an advertisement appearing April 5 in TV Guide magazine.

The two men were arrested by postal inspectors Tuesday night in Aust's home. They are residents of Breslau, Germany, in the United States on business visas, sheriff's officers said.

They were arraigned in U.S. District Court and bond was set at $15,000 each. Preliminary hearing was scheduled for June 13.

If each of the 57,000 letters had yielded $25, the promoters would have taken $1,425,000. Wallins said. But he knew of no checks cashed by the pair and doubted if any "winners" would lose money.

The advertisement said Deluxe Vacationer was associated with leading travel agencies the world over and was conducting a "travel preference survey."

Some 2,000 vacation prizes were to be awarded to persons who filled out a questionnaire. Then, said Wallins, winners "certificates" were mailed requesting the registration fee within 10 days.

Money Requests

The money requests triggered inquiries to district attorneys, chambers of commerce, better business bureaus and postal inspectors across the country and in Canada.

In Philadelphia, Harry Coles, counsel for Triangel publications, which publishes TV Guide, said the magazine notified postal inspectors when it started getting calls from "winners."

"Fortunately the postal authorities moved swiftly and put a stop on the mail," Coles said. "Hopefully all the mail was stopped in time."

He said TV Guide was surprised when it started getting calls because it didn't know the intent of the advertisement when it was placed.

Private School Is Subject At New London Study Club

NEW LONDON — "The Presence of Price Education in the Community" was the title of a talk by the Rev. Robert Groher presented Tuesday to the Catholic Women's Study Club. Father Groher is a teacher at St. Mary's High School, Oshkosh. He called the primary element in the parochial system, a philosophy of a way of life, constant in the way of God.

Criticism in the press of the private educational system would indicate, he said, that the philosophical element of private education is not being adequately transmitted. Father Groher said the crucial element taking place is freedom, freedom of choice for parents in determining the education for their children's spiritual and educational welfare.

Benefit Community Public and private school complement each other, with benefits derived by children in the private facility benefiting the entire community, he said. Father Groher said the "aid

Calumet Supervisors Back Tarr Task Force Proposal

CHILTON — Calumet County supervisors went on record recently in support of two Tarr task force proposals which would enhance the status of counties in Wisconsin.

Supervisors voted unanimously in favor of Tarr's recommendations that counties be given more authority to provide certain area-wide services and the constitutional requirement that county voters must approve by referendum detachment of county territory be maintained.

The action stemmed from a questionnaire in the March, 1969, issue of Wisconsin Counties magazine which listed 12 Tarr proposals and a request for county response "to obtain the feeling of Wisconsin counties."

14 Responded

Questionnaires were received by the 16 Calumet supervisors and 14 responded, it was reported. The results were sent to the Wisconsin County Board's Association (WASB) and state-level representatives from Calumet.

The Tarr report pointed out that except for school districts, there has been little reduction in the past 50 years in the number of local units of government. Tarr urged this reduction and less overlapping.

To accomplish this, Tarr proposed that "county government should be strengthened" to provide more services to sparsely populated areas.

Position Sought

The questionnaire asked whether supervisors favored new metropolitan government to replace county government services in metropolitan areas or more county authority to provide municipal service.

The alternative, according to the questionnaire, would be removing the referendum requirement from the state constitution and vesting it in the legislature.

The Calumet supervisors were split on other questions posed.

Five supervisors favored and nine opposed establishing county districts for real estate assessment by the county, with the state sharing in the cost of the assessments. Assessment now is done on the town and municipality level.

Shared Tax

Supervisors responded 8-6 against a new shared tax distribution formula by pooling all shared taxes and altering the distribution formula.

They voted 12-2 against changing the state statute to provide duties by statute for county administrators and county executives on a permissive basis.

Fire Engineer Vacates Old Apartment

New London Begins Preparations to Comply With State

NEW LONDON — Preparations for moving the chief engineer of the fire department into living quarters about a half block from the station are underway.

The engineer, Ruben Voss, has vacated the apartment above the station and is living in the boiler room of city hall. His wife is living with a sister.

Voss was ordered to vacate the apartment above the station by midnight Monday. The order was given by the city so work could be done to comply with a June 1 order by the state.

An apartment above Dr. John Monsted's office has been rented by the city and will serve as temporary living quarters until a new fire station is constructed.

The city has until January, 1971, to build the new facility.

Moving into the apartment is being held up because a cable for the automatic alarm system was not ordered until this week and has not arrived. The cable will extend from the apartment to the station and will be used for activating radio alarms and broadcasting messages to firemen.

Among the dignitaries expected to attend are State Sen. Myron Lott, R-Green Bay, and Assemblyman Gervase Hepler, D-Chilton, and William J. Schereck, office of local history of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin.

Dr. Royal Klofanda, 216 Reed St., museum founder, will give a brief history of the facility's origin.

A style show, "Yesterday Year," directed by Mrs. Harry Hamer, 925 S. Madison St., and Mrs. E. T. Rathert, 905 S. State St., will feature styles of years gone by.

Antique cars will be on display. There will be music and local talent offered during the afternoon. Lunch and refreshments will be served on the grounds starting at 1 p.m.

The state squad car pursued an auto at speeds up to 130 miles an hour on U.S. 10 between Weyauwega and Waupaca. The chase ended when the car being pursued broke down and was abandoned by the driver. The driver disappeared into the darkness, leaving youthful companions in the car.

On other proposals, they responded:

—11-3 against repealing the constitutional requirement for uniformity of county government.

—13-1 that the counties retain supervisory districts by constitutional requirement rather than with the legislature.

—11-3 against making certain county offices, as clerk, sheriff and other, appointive instead of elective.

—13-1 against removing the constitutional requirement of a referendum before the county seat can be removed.

—9-5 for maintaining county and unit systems of general relief, at the discretion of the county board, instead of strictly county relief.

—11-3 against unilateral annexation upon approval by the proposed Boundary Review Board. The WASB historically has taken no stand on this topic but was interested in supervisors' feelings.

—8-5 for limited constitutional home rule for county government as opposed to legislative home rule.

William Sparks and Carol Stevenson are graduating with high honors from Clintonville Senior High School. Sixteen other students are graduating with honors.

Representatives Selected

Planners Organize Shawano Lake Unit

SHAWANO — The governing planning agency, and James body of the newly formed Erdmann, Northeastern's Council of Governments for Shawano Lake Urban Area municipality services section directed by the city and will serve as temporary living quarters until a new fire station is constructed.

The SLACOG members are adjacent to the lake but have select officers and develop objectives.

SLACOG, formed late last year because of strong demands for regional effort to control one man per $10 million equalized valuation.

Unlike a regional planning organization, a council of governments has the stronger back- ing for projects because elected representatives of member municipalities participate in the action.

The nine representatives participating units of government are: Shawano, Clintonville, Waupaca, Waubesa, Waubesa, Waubesa, Waubesa, Waubesa, Waubesa.

Representatives Picked Selected to represent their units of government were: Martin Weing, Milton Ludolph, Martin Gersch and Don Gull, of the City of Shawano; August Treptow and Shirley Thoreson, given and discussion is expected of the Town of Wescott; Arthur Kriewaldt, Town of Richmond; William Peterman, Village of Cecil, and Paul Falk, Town of Washington township.

The members elected Treptow include representatives of all chairman, Peterman, vice social and service organizations chairman and Kriewaldt, secretary-treasurer.

The group has designed to nominate three members for its professional seating on the committee.

Increasing the number of members on the committee to 12, given and discussion is expected of the Town of Wescott; Arthur Kriewaldt, Town of Richmond; William Peterman, Village of Cecil, and Paul Falk, Town of Washington township.

Two Methodist pastors, one in Appleton, the other formerly of Appleton, will exchange pulpits this summer with ministers from England under a program sponsored by the World Methodist Council.

The Rev. Kenneth Engleman, First Methodist Church, will exchange places with the Rev. Ernest W. Griffin, of Worthing, Sussex. The Rev. Bernard A. Kassilke, now of West Bend and formerly from here, will go to Herwyl, Wirral, England, near Liverpool.

A total of 13 pastors from six states are involved in the program.

The Rev. Mr. Griffin will preach seven Sundays, beginning June 22.

Pre-Marital Health Checkup Inadequate

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: I plan to be married soon and would like to know what to expect when I have my examination. Is this supposed to be an overall physical or basically a pelvic examination? — L. B.

This varies according to location, state laws, and in some cases the routine of the doctor. Most states require a blood test, to detect venereal disease. In many instances — too many — that's all. Some states require a "medical examination," yet very often this amounts only to a blood test. I would like to see this changed. I am not alone in this. I know that some physicians refuse to brush it off with only the blood test, but insist that the law be followed literally — a genuine health examination instead of merely a test for VD.

somewhere," Cernan said, adding later:

"Nothing Is Impossible"
"I've always believed that nothing is impossible and now I'm convinced of it. I hope that what we're doing here and what's going to go on in the future is going to be something that's going to be a betterment to all mankind."

The astronauts televised the initial departure from the moon for 55 minutes, shut down for nearly an hour and then beamed down another five-minute picture showing a smaller moon partially in shadow.

"It looks like a chocolate milk shake—that's the best color I can think of," Stafford said. "We're happy to share it with everybody on Earth."

After that the astronauts, tired after being awake for nearly 24 hours, settled down to sleep until midafternoon.

Near Perfect Course
Mission control told them they could sleep well, assured that the engine burn had placed them on a near-perfect course for Earth. Only minor midcourse corrections would be needed, trackers said.

Apollo 10 whipped behind the moon for the 31st and last time at 4:57 a.m. Twenty-eight minutes later the engine exploded to life for 2 minutes 44 seconds to boost the craft's speed from 3,660 to 6,100 miles per hour.

"We're go here. See you on the way home," Stafford said as Apollo 10 disappeared from view.

Had the engine failed to fire, the astronauts would have been stranded in moon orbit, with no rescue possible.

The successful maneuver propelled the astronauts along a 246,283-mile transearth freeway. They were to end their lunar adventure with a splashdown in the Pacific Ocean near Pago Pago at 11:53 a.m. Monday, an eight-day journey that included 2½ days circling the moon.

The pilots raised the possibility of smashing into their lunar landing craft shortly after midnight when the spindly-legged craft came uncomfortably close while they still were in orbit.

During the telecast, the astronauts provided vivid descriptions of the pictures flashing on the screens back home.

Impact Craters
Young: "There's a grayish tan color on the mare in Sinus Medii. You can see a white crater in the center of the screen with a black spot right in the middle of it. . . . There are many small new impact craters."

Stafford: "There's Censorinus. Isn't that bright?"

Young summed it up this way: "No matter where you look, there's some different geological feature to study. Boy, it's got a lot of them."

During their lunar adventure, the astronauts cleared the way for Apollo 11 astronauts Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin to set foot on this alien lunar world. They and command ship pilot Michael Collins are to be launched from Cape Kennedy July 16.

Establish Dummy by Ruffing Suit

By Alfred Sheinwold
Today's hand, which helped North America beat France in the qualifying rounds of the 1967 world championship, is part of a collection of world championship hands now being assembled by Parker Brothers for use with the Autobridge board. Philadelphia expert Norman Kay bid the spots off the North cards; and then New York expert Edgar Kaplan played the spots off all 52 cards to make his doubled contract.

Leon Tintner, of the French team, opened a trump on the assumption that North-South were bidding on distributional strength and might need a crossruff. Every trump lead against a crossruff tends to save a trick for the defense.

Kaplan won the first trick with the king of clubs and saw that he could no longer get 11 tricks by crossruffing because of the opening trump lead. The only hope was to set up dummy by ruffing out the spades. The chance of a reasonable spade break was quite good because if West had held a singleton spade he would have led it rather than a trump.

Fast Start
Without wasting a moment, Kaplan led a spade to the ace and ruffed a spade with the six of trumps. When this got by safely the rest of the hand was mere exercise to a first-class player.

Kaplan ruffed a diamond in received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

dummy, ruffed another spade, led a heart to the ace and ruffed a third low spade with his last trump. By this time dummy's last two spades were good, but two trumps were still out.

Declarer ruffed another diamond in dummy and drew a round of trumps with the ace. This left the nine of trumps in the West hand and the singleton eight of clubs in the dummy.

Kaplan naturally abandoned the trumps in order to lead a good spade. If West ruffed, dummy would get back with the eight of trumps to cash the last spade. If West discarded, declarer would lead the last good spade from dummy. Either way, the defenders could get only the nine of trumps and a heart trick.

Diet Suggestions Might Work for Others

By Ann Landers
DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've found an easy way to lose weight and I want to pass it on to others who love food, hate to count calories, are afraid of diet pills and don't care for vigorous exercise. I'm not saying my method will work for everybody, but it worked for me and it also worked for two of my friends.

Step One: Take about two-thirds the size helping you would normally take. Don't cut anything out of your diet that you thoroughly enjoy. Just take one-third less.

Step Two: Eat slowly. I discovered that by eating slowly I finish my meal with the others and I put away a lot less food. Fast eaters eat more. They usually go for seconds and thirds because they find it difficult to sit at a table and not eat while others are eating.

If this sounds crazy, Ann, just try it. You'll find it works. — No Longer a Hippie.

Dear No: I'm not interested in losing weight but I invite those who are to try your method and let me know in two weeks if it worked.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Today was my birthday. When Earl left for work he didn't say anything. All day I kept listening for the telephone or the doorbell. Neither one rang. At 6:30 p.m. Earl walked through the door and greeted me with, "What's to eat?" After dinner I couldn't stand it any longer. I said in a calm, civilized tone, "Earl, dear, do you know what day it is?" He replied, "Yes, it's Saturday." I then asked, "Is there anything special about this Saturday?" He thought a minute and said, "It's the fourth Saturday of the month." I finally shrieked, "It's my birthday, you jerk."

Earl mumbled something about not being very good at remembering dates and added, "Go buy yourself a nice gift and give me the bill."

What is your opinion of a husband who forgets his wife's birthday after she has given him four children and the best years of her life? — Hurt

Dear Hurt: Sorry, but I don't attach much importance to birthdays. Since you do, why didn't you remind him a couple of weeks in advance? Or is it more fun to let him forget and be mad?

To all you gals out there to whom dates are important, give the guys a fighting chance. A little hint in advance can save a whale of an argument.

DEAR ANN: Last week our 12-year-old son got a front tooth knocked out playing baseball. My neighbor said if the boy had brought the tooth to the dentist it could have been transplanted. Is this true? — Want the Facts

Dear Want: In many cases, yes — depending on the condition of the tooth. So pay attention, kids — if you get your teeth knocked out, save 'em for the dentist.

What is French kissing? Is it wrong? Who should set the necking limits — the on or the girl? Can a shotgun wedding succeed? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-Age Sex — Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Post-Crescent, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Officer Disciplined for Comment on Pageant

WASHINGTON (AP) — A young Air Force officer who introduced the girl to the audience interrupted a beauty contest at the Washington Monument to complain that no Negroes were in the contest has been removed from the list of White House social aides.

Air Force Lt. Joseph E. Caudle, an astronautical engineer, said Friday he was told he was removed from the social aides' list "not for what I said, but the fact that I said it."

Lt. Cmdr. Charles R. Larson, chief of White House social aides, confirmed Caudle's name was withdrawn April 14.

Larson said Caudle attended one White House reception as an observer.

"He was still in the screening process, and it would have been another month before the screening would have been completed," Larson said.

During the beauty pageant at the Cherry Blossom Festival April 12, Caudle was an escort to the princess representing Colorado. He was instructed to introduce the girl to the audience of 10,000 at the Sylvan Theater on the monument grounds.

When he did so, Caudle added: "There are no black princesses this year, and since this is one of Washington's greatest social events, I think this is unfortunate and inappropriate that this has occurred."

Later, Walter E. Washington, mayor of the District of Columbia, and a Negro, told newsmen, "He's absolutely right. This will be different next year."

Caudle, who is white, was a 1967 graduate of the Air Force Academy and had been a Fulbright scholar in Germany.

Social aides at the White House are outstanding military officers who attend state functions and escort ladies at ceremonies and parties.

Charles Robb, then a Marine captain, met Lynda Bird Johnson, whom he married, while he served as a White House social aide during the Johnson administration.

The Nomination of Judge Warren Burger

Whether the contrast of President Nixon's nomination of Judge Warren Burger as chief justice of the Supreme Court with the circumstances of the forced resignation of Abe Fortas as a justice was only a coincidence of timing or whether the President took the Fortas affair into account in making his selection is an unanswered question at this time. But there can be no doubt that the nation will welcome the nature of the nominee and that the President's choice will help repair the damage to the court resulting from the Fortas resignation.

For the Fortas affair stood in the public mind as an appointment grounded on close political relationship to former President Johnson which had gone bad. In the normal course of events, Mr. Nixon might have been expected to turn to a political associate in making his appointment. Atty. Gen. John Mitchell, the President's campaign manager, was regarded as one possibility. Thomas E. Dewey, long-time Republican power, was regarded as another.

Crowded Living May Breed Crime

The rate of violent crime in the crowded cities is considerably higher than that in the suburbs, small towns or rural areas. Several experiments lead to tentative conclusions that overcrowding may be one of the reasons.

Dr. Kurt Richter of Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore has demonstrated that when rats are subjected to extremely crowded conditions, they become ill, develop aberrant behavior such as homosexuality and often eat their young. Dr. Edward Hall of the Illinois Institute of Technology, has studied people of various cultures and their needs for physical separation and has concluded that certain kinds of crowding appear to pressure some people toward violence.

Dr. Augustus Kinsel, teacher of psychiatry at Columbia University's College of Physicians and Surgeons, reported his experiments with different types of prisoners to the American Psychiatric Association's annual meeting. Dr. Kinsel put

Zap's Experience Not All Bad

The belief that newspapers don't have much influence anymore was pretty well dispelled a couple of weeks ago to the discomfiture of the 300 residents of Zap, North Dakota.

The incident began when the North Dakota State College student newspaper suggested that vacationing students should "zip to Zap" and turn the little town into "the Fort Lauderdale of the North." And that's just what they did. Before the weekend was over, buildings and furniture were turned into firewood, fights had broken out, just about all the extra beer bought in preparation was consumed and the North

Now Nixon and Thieu Will Meet

The urgent request of President Nguyen Van Thieu for a meeting with President Richard Nixon to clear up a few matters implied in President Nixon's recent speech on the war in Vietnam is an indication that the South Vietnamese leaders are not quite so enthusiastic about Mr. Nixon's proposals as the official news releases said.

The idea of a coalition government which would include members of the National Liberation Front has never been accepted by the leaders in Saigon. Communists and their sympathizers were specifically barred from voting in the last general elections and the major challenger to President Thieu's victory was sent to prison because he advocated an end to the war and accommodation with the Viet Cong.

It must also seem highly improbable to South Vietnamese leaders that their own military units will be strong enough to permit American withdrawals of the major part of their forces within 12 months.

Sell Courthouse to City,
Build New One, Writer Says

Editor, Post-Crescent:

Most of us complain about decisions of those representing us, but never bother to let them know what we think. Often it is easier for one to think more clearly when not involved so closely.

In regard to the county safety building, would it not be considerably less for taxpayers of both city and county if the courthouse could be sold, as is, to the city? The county then could buy land just north of Appleton. It should be nearer the county center; but better close to Appleton for other officials.

There could be plenty of space also for parking and the Gear became the senior princess and Ann Leffel the junior princess. Joyce Bethard was named guide and Carol Jung marshal cost would be much less than tearing down nice houses, much needed by city residents.

As for the jail. If it isn't adequate for the city, the extras could be taken to the county jail

As for shopping, the merchants would lose more from the residents who lose their homes. Appleton is the shopping center for the county anyway.

Write your various representatives in regard to decisions involving taxes and waste of money, housing and the welfare of our young people, or don't complain.

BY PETER O'LOUGHLIN
BANGKOK (AP) — This council of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, Asia's only regional defense organization, set up in 1954 in Manila as a bulwark against Communist military expansion meets this week amidst a growing tide of criticism.

The criticism has come in part from its members, some of whom claim SEATO is a paper tiger that should be reformed, revitalized or abolished altogether.

One of the chief criticisms is that SEATO lacks political unity, has no army and no teeth and thus has no credibility as a deterrent to Communist expansion.

The Philippine foreign secretary, Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, recently appointed a seven-man advisory council to review the Philippines' position on SEATO.

Reflecting strong Filipino misgivings about the aims of the organization, the committee was asked to determine whether SEATO was fulfilling its role, and if not, to recommend whether it should be abolished or reorganized.

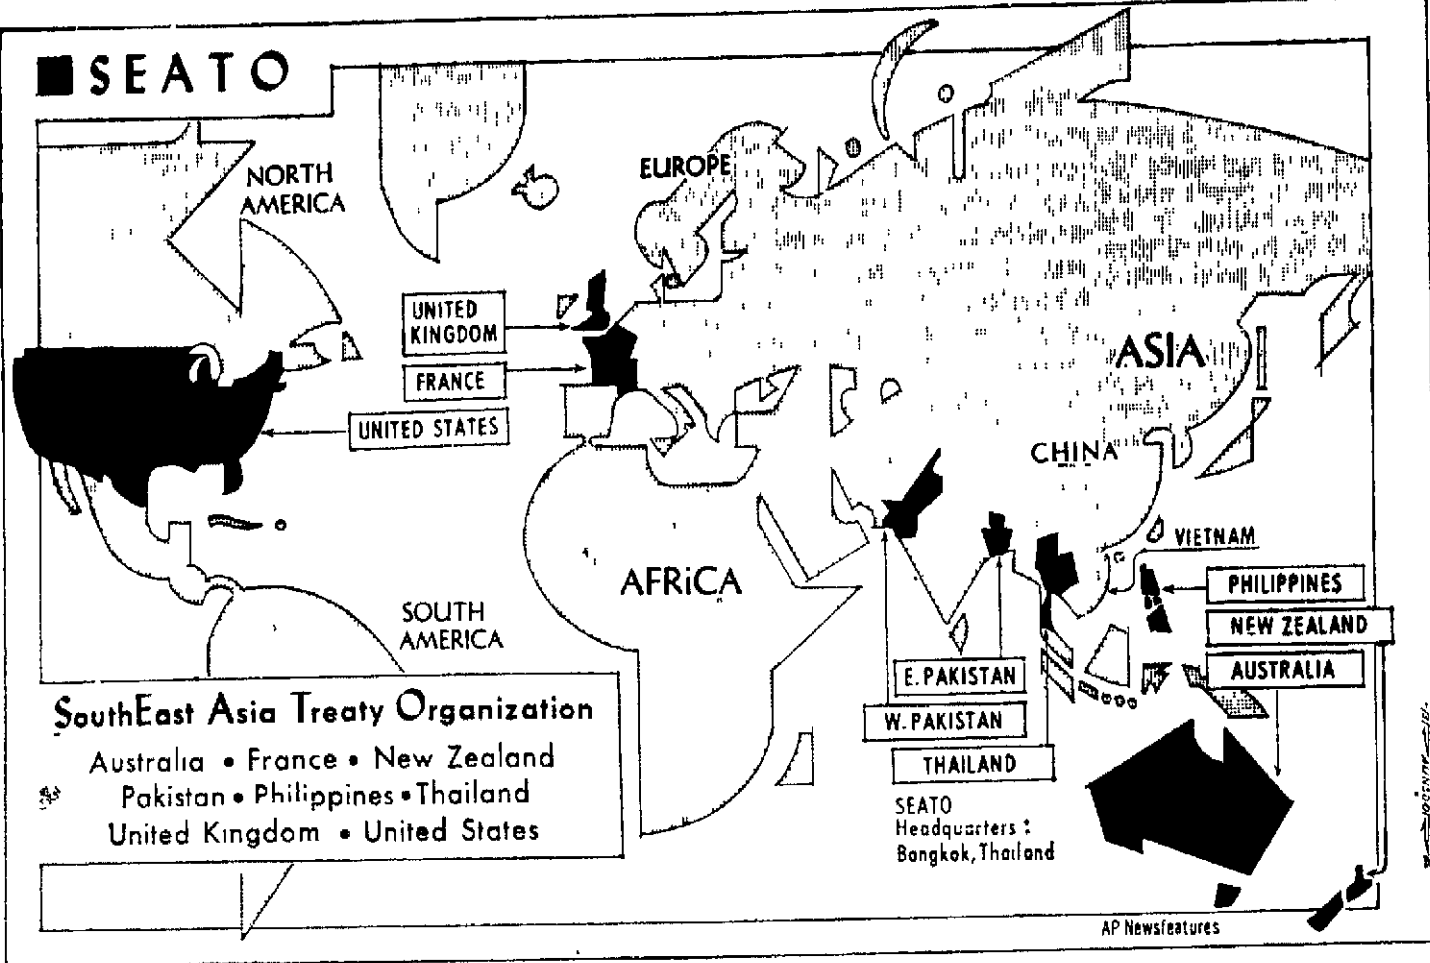

Thailand, probably the strongest SEATO advocate among the eight member nations, also wants the alliance revamped, but not abolished.

"We are not overpleased with it," Thai Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman said recently. "But we do not favor disbanding it until we have something better to replace it."

Thanat suggested there should be a "reorientation of SEATO from a mere military alliance to a more political forum."

He said the need to make SEATO more political than military stemmed from the fact that European members of the alliance, Britain and

Toothless SEA TO May be Revamped

France, were becoming less and less militarily involved in Asia.

The British military withdrawal from Asia, to be completed by 1971, has further weakened the military aspect of SEATO. But the British have promised to send troops to the SEATO banner if needed.

Few SEATO members, particularly the Asian ones, think this is likely.

France, a founding member, has boycotted council meetings for the last three years and did not send a delegation this year.

Australia, New Zealand and the United States are heavily committed in Asia and particularly in Vietnam.

But many Asian leaders, despite American assurances to the contrary, believe the U. S. is preparing to withdraw militarily from the Asian mainland once the Vietnam war is over.

This would further rob SEATO of its most powerful, battle-ready member and leave a vast military power vacuum in the area.

Australia and New Zealand, both with permanent bases and army, navy and air force units in Malaysia and Singapore, do not have the military muscle to assume America's role.

For this reason, some Asian leaders, notably in Thailand, South Korea and Nationalist China have been speaking in recent months about an enlarged Asian military alliance, without direct U. S. involvement, but with implicit U. S. support.

This, according to some SEATO sources, is a possible alternative to SEATO.

As it stands now, SEATO is powerless to intervene militarily anywhere in the region unless asked to. According to SEATO Secretary General Jesus Vargas, SEATO is set up to combat overt or open aggression, particularly by Communist China.

All of SEATO's military planning is premised precisely on the possibility of subversion developing into insurgency and limited war. Vargas said in a recent speech. "The true worth of SEATO's military preparedness has lain mainly in its deterrent value."

But in the 15 years since its formation, SEATO has hardly deterred the Communists one whit. Vietnam has erupted for the second time, the political and military situation in Laos has worsened and Thailand is fighting a serious guerrilla war.

SEATO, however, is not equipped to handle, and its planning barely takes into account, the now traditional Communist methods of infiltration and subversion that torment Laos, Thailand and Vietnam.

Adults, Youth Must

Editor, Post-Crescent:

With deep concern I have read the letter of Mr. William Miles Bauer, student of Lawrence University, in which he asks "Why did Appleton people scorn fast for peace by L. U. students?"

Despite the fact that the "generation gap" is growing wider than many people realize, perhaps by trying hard and with your help, Bill, maybe I can answer, at least partly, your questions.

Let me first introduce myself: I am a newcomer in this country since 1949. I spend by boyhood years in the flaming guts of Europe in World War II. Having experienced the painful wrath of first communists and later the Nazis in Germany, I have learned to admire and love my foster country very much.

Lately, watching helplessly our country being torn by internal convulsions of hate, demonstrations and desecrations of our national emblems and heritage, I often suffer and wonder why? For example, why do people use uncivilized four letter words addressing each other, not only as it took place in your case, but in hundreds of instances whenever their lines of view cross.

Perhaps this would serve as a partial answer. Bill, people in our country are afraid of any type of demonstrations because as innocently as some of them begin, they very often end up in violent clashes with the police or law enforcement agencies, whose only sin is very often that they are responsible for law and order and must enforce it.

People in our country are fed up with the war in Vietnam, a war which none of us can truly understand, a war fought in a way as not to be won, a war fought for the simple reason that some of our leaders made foolish and unreasonable commitments, a war through which we try to teach Asiatic people the meaning of democracy, something that they don't understand or seek, a war where our best sons are bled to death by a ruthless enemy. And of course our people seeing anybody demonstrating against the war, reason that the demonstrators are against the efforts of their sons.

You see, Bill, we have today demonstrations against anything and everything you can think of. People don't stop to think what the particular demonstration is all about. They are just plainly fed up with demonstrations and very often with themselves.

We have lost faith in our leaders who, being preoccupied with races for the offices

Superficial appears as the right word for the letter to the People's Forum, signed a 70-year-old Appleton taxpayer, who wrote that dirty Lawrence students make elderly residential sick.

More perceptive appears the statement by the president of a great American university who commended most college students now as a very promising and attractive group of persons. Let me quote what he said of them.

"They are more informed, more widely read, better educated, more idealistic and more deeply sensitive to crucial moral issues in our times — more likely to dedicate themselves to good rather than selfish goals than any past generation of students I have known."

It was such students as these who rightly ask, "Why Did Appleton People Scorn Fast for Peace by LU Students?"

Wisconsin Report
Little Likelihood That
Legislature Will Vote
To Reduce Voting Age

By JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — Notwithstanding the heavy vote of approval in the assembly for a constitutional amendment that would reduce the age for voting from 21 years to 19 and to make 19 years the age of majority for all other rights, there remains reason to doubt that such assembly's decisive vote. And it came after fairly extensive arguments on both sides.

ARGUMENT HAS TWO SIDES

The burden of the argument of those who favor such a change is that children are better educated, more responsible, more mature, and otherwise more qualified to have the rights and duties of adults than were their forbearers, even their immediate forbearers.

But there is a solid reservoir of opinion that doubts such claims or openly challenges them. The facts appear to show that children today continue a status of dependency longer than in any previous history of the modern western world.

Today the process of education has been lengthened to such a degree that a young person does not attain his majority, in terms of self-support, marriage and other matters, until considerably later. Does nearly universal college training prove that young people are more mature? There is a substantial body of opinion that is skeptical.

YOUNG GOVERNOR POSSIBLE

Sometimes these questions can be illuminated by illustrating their possible consequences. How many voters of Wisconsin would support a 19-year-old for governor, for example? The amendment before the legislature would make such a candidacy possible.

The careful listener to these discussions tends to suspect that there are other considerations, less candidly related, influencing the politicians on this issue. The Republicans are conscious of the fact that the Democrats have exploited youth voting.

They are also increasingly aware of the reduction of the average in the country and apprehensive that the boy or girl of 19 or 20 who believes in a younger voting age may exact his retribution at the polls against the politician who opposed such a change, when reaching the age of 21.

Gov. Knowles himself, a late convert to the cause of letting children vote, told the Republican convention the other day that quite soon the average age of Wisconsin residents will be around 25 years. He was not engaged in a sociological lecture. He was talking about the logistics of political campaigns of his party in future years.

Public Officials Must be Ready to Accept Scrutiny

Editor, Post-Crescent:

If straight-forward, accurate reporting of factual and documented incidents is to be defined as "yellow journalism," then I say, more power to it.

Charges the "Post-Crescent" dabbled with "yellow journalism," levied by an area political figure, are nothing more than yelps resulting from an individual wearing the shoe that pinches.

Public officials are given a sacred trust. Their private life is their own. But their activity in official conduct of office is subject to close review and open discussion, including the commentary of the press, radio and TV.

This is without qualification. "I've been smeared," is the usual response from figures who have no suitable or acceptable explanation for actions which may be uncovered by a diligent free press.

I know of no recent situation where the Post-Crescent has not been fair in disclosing both sides of issues.

Having read accounts of recent incidents involving some area state legislators, published in other media, it appears your coverage was impartial.

I feel I speak with some minor authority. I have some knowledge of public office, and know something about the public responsibility of the media.

There is a recommendation I would like to make to public officials, and aspiring public officials. Don't do anything in the conduct of the office, which you would fear to be printed or broadcast.

The media is the eyes and ears of the public.

Lawrence Students In Recitals, Contest

Frederik Schuetze to Give Program Monday,
Organists Scheduled for Tuesday Afternoon

Lawrence University senior Frederik Schuetze, a 1967 winner of state and regional Federation of Music Clubs voice competitions, will present a public recital at 8 p.m. Monday in Harper Hall at the Lawrence Music-Drama Center.

Schuetze, from Monroe, is a baritone and voice student Eugene Casselman, professor of music.

His program includes the "Prologue," from "Pagliacci," by Leoncavallo; "O du mein holder Abendstern," from "Tannhauser," by Wagner; "O Lord, my darkened heart enlighten," from the "Christmas Oratorio," by J. S. Bach; seven songs from "Dichterliebe," by Robert Schumann; and songs by Ralph Vaughan-Williams, Peter Warlock, Charles Ives and Modest Moussorgsky.

In Opera Theatre Schuetze sang the role of Ramiro, the Muleteer, in a 1967 Lawrence Opera Theatre production of Ravel's "The Spanish Hour," and in 1968 was cast as Mr. Ford in Otto Nickolai's "The Merry Wives of Windsor." He has sung with the Lawrence Men's Chorus, Concert Choir, Choral Society and Lawrence Singers, and has appeared on several general student recitals. For the past three years, he has been a member of the choir of the First United Methodist Church, Appleton.

He will be assisted on Monday's recital by pianist David Johnson, conservatory senior from Ashland.

Three area students will be among the performers on a program of organ music at 3 p.m. Tuesday in Lawrence Chapel.

The musicians are Mark Haldeman, Neenah freshman; Frank Rippl, Menasha senior; and Paul Emmons, a junior from Appleton.

Haldeman will open the recital with the "Prelude and Fugue in E Minor," by J. S. Bach. Rippl will follow with two Bach settings of the chorale "Nun komm der Heiden Heiland." Emmons will play the closing work, "Symphonie Gothique," by Charles Marie Widor.

Other performers are David Johnson, Ashland, and Bert Lord, Libertyville, Ill. Johnson will play "Passacaille pour Orgue" (1944), by Frank Martin. Lord has programmed Eugene Gigout's "Scherzo in E Major."

Songs by Former Student

Lawrence Women's Chorus To Sing Sunday Afternoon

Two songs by former Lawrence University student Harold B. Green will be on the Lawrence Women's Chorus program at 4 p.m. Sunday in Harper Hall.

Green, cum laude graduate of the conservatory class of 1943 and presently a teacher of music theory at Wisconsin College of Music, Milwaukee, is the composer of "From Three Sonnets of William Shakespeare." Two of the settings, "That Time of Year" and "At Heaven's Gate," highlight the second part of Sunday's program.

The composer received his bachelor's degree at Lawrence and a master's from the University of Rochester. During the mid-1940's, he was organist at the First Presbyterian Church, Neenah, and accompanist for the Lawrence Concert Choir. He took his present post in 1949.

Finally the Chief gets exasperated at the big personnel losses and allows Max to take Hymie.

Big Brothers Step Up Fund Raising Effort

NEENAH - MENASHA — Big Brothers of Winnebago County, Inc. will be stepping up their campaign to raise $20,000 during the remainder of May, with a 30,000 piece mailing asking county residents for donations which will go into the mail today.

The organization as assisted in the stuffing and stamping of envelopes by a number of groups including students from St. Mary's High School, Menasha; patients at county institutions; the Varsity Club and the ladies of St. Andrew's Lutheran Church in Oshkosh.

The Winnebago County chapter of the Big Brothers has been in existence for a little more than a year. So far, a total of 18 boys have been matched with big brothers, but a lack of funds has hampered the activities of the organization, and more money is needed to expand the program and hire a fulltime director.

It is estimated that there are more $600 fatherless boys in the county who are in need of the services of the Big Brothers.

M. J. Gegan, retiring Menasha school superintendent and his wife, second from left, were guests of honor this week during a program of the Menasha Education Association. With Mr. and Mrs. Gegan are Lillian

'Avoid Problems' Is Port Design Intent

BY DON CASTONIA
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

OSHKOSH — Plans for the new Winnebago County Airport terminal building are an effort to avoid the problems faced by Brown County and Madison, Michael T. Brock, airport manager, said Friday.

Brock also indicated that the entire 92,000 square foot terminal probably would not be constructed in one project. He said the object was to insure adequate terminal space for passenger traffic in the 1990's.

Brock's comments were in response to statements by Theran Clark, Manager of Austin Straubel Field at Green Bay, and Robert Skuldt, manager of Madison Municipal Airport, that the proposed Winnebago County Airport terminal appeared "ambitious" in view of projected passenger use.

Skuldt also had revealed a Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) letter in which Winnebago County was asked to update its airport master plan and particularly to reconsider the proposed location of the terminal building.

'To Avoid Trouble' Brock noted that both Madison and Green Bay have nearly new terminal buildings and that Green Bay is doubling the size of its terminal while Madison is on the second floor.

considering scrapping its terminal and building a new one.

"This is what we want to avoid," Brock said. He is preparing figures to show how much of the proposed terminal building is public space and how much would be in leased, revenue-producing area.

"Just giving the total square feet in not a true picture, Brock said. He indicated North Central Airlines would be using considerably more space than now. Louis Griedl Jr., North Central station manager, said the airline would probably request "five or six times" the present 1,365 square feet they now occupy.

The airport manager also felt the air line probably would not ask to have the entire 92,000 square feet built at the present time. The total package includes the main complex and two, second-level passenger holding and loading gates.

Brock said North Central has requested one second-level loading area immediately and an option on a second gate. It may be possible he said, to delay the construction of the second loading area.

Also, construction could be delayed on a portion of the main building designed to house new terminal buildings and that office space on the first floor. Green Bay is doubling the size of its terminal while Madison is on the second floor.

Brock said a terminal site study was conducted in 1967 by Howard Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff, the county's airport consultant firm, and other sites closer to the new north-south runway were considered.

Those sites were rejected, he said, because they were not economically feasible or practical. Brock noted that if the terminal were moved south and to the west side of the north-south runway, a new taxiway would have to be built for the runway.

To move the terminal south of the east-west runway, to the east of the north-south runway, would result in almost no public access to the building, he said.

Brock admitted that 25 or 30 years from now a different location for the terminal may be desirable but the present location was the best for the near future.

Part of the FAA request for a new site study apparently was partially based on the belief the east-west runway could not handle the weight of DC-9 jets and that the terminal was too far from the north-south runway.

FAA referred to the east-west runway as having a weight capability of 60,000 pounds. The runway was rebuilt several years ago to carry 125,000 pounds.

Park Plantings

A Tree Grows in Neenah

NEENAH — In five years the Neenah Park and Recreation Department hopes to have a continuing supply of hale and hearty trees to replace those which have fallen victim to age and Dutch Elm disease.

An "intermediate nursery" has been started at Memorial Park, where the department is planting "whip" trees and will coddle them for the next five years, until they can be planted without too much fear of falling prey to weather and vandals.

William Miller, superintendent of parks and recreation, said the 7-10 year old whips have been started by professionals and now "we should be able to grow them for another five years."

The ideal tree to plant is between 1½ and 2-inches in diameter. "This kind can stand up to almost anything," he said.

Menasha Chief Named To State AA Committee

MENASHA — Police Chief Lester Clark, as president of the Wisconsin Chiefs of Police Association, has been named a co-chairman of the bring 'em back alive committee of Alcoholics Anonymous.

Gov. Warren Knowles is chairman of the committee, made up of numerous public officials, law enforcement representatives and other figures. The organization hopes to curtail traffic accidents related to drinking, particularly on Memorial Day, July 4, and Labor Day.

"but they are also more expensive."

"By planting about 120 trees every year, in five years we should have a continuing supply to plant in our parks," Miller explained.

"We are making sure we get a good variety so we don't get caught like our ancestors did with the elms," he pointed out. So far 217 trees of 27 different varieties have been planted at the old Swatscheno farm.

"We don't have the manpower or knowledge to start trees from seeds," Miller explained, "so what we are doing is buying the trees after they have matured for about 7-10 years and replanting them."

"After about five years they should be ready to transplant in the parks," he said.

This year, eight varieties were planted including Ash, Locust, Linden, Maple, Oak, Willow Hackberry and Flowering Crabs.

"We chose the trees after considerable study," Miller said. "First we have to make sure they will grow in our weather and soil conditions, and provide the type aesthetic beauty we are looking for."

"From all we can find out about these trees," he said, "they will grow fast and will be able to survive our climatic conditions."

After letting the trees grow for five years, they will have matured to a point where they can survive the elements without a lot of care.

The whips cost from $5 to $10, while if the department would purchase the larger trees the price would be multiplied by three to five times.

Police said Belling suffered mouth and nose injuries. He has been released from the hospital.

Police said Belling was east-bound on Taft when his auto struck the parked car owned by Roger J. Peterman, 713 E. Taft Ave. There was considerable damage to both autos.

Bridge Sag Snarls Traffic

Already plagued by problems on main southside arteries leading to the downtown area, Appleton's traffic dilemma worsened Friday with the discovery that supports are giving away under a portion of the S. Oneida Street bridge.

Frank Keuler, director of public works, said that depending on the severity of the bridge deterioration, the span could be at last partially closed for up to two or three months.

Keuler said bridge engineers from the Division of Highways of the State Department of Transportation will be in Appleton early next week to assess the bridge damage.

Meanwhile, traffic on the 40-year-old span is being severely hampered.

Bridge Deck Settles

Because of the failure of some supporting beams, a portion of the bridge deck at the head of N. Island Street has settled about 3 inches, Keuler said. The major part of the settling is on the west side of the span, which carries southbound traffic through the industrial flats.

Keuler said it would not be immediately determined why the supports failed. He also said his department could not yet be sure if the only weakened supports are under the 30-foot panel now affected or if supports under the entire 133-foot span, one of four sections of the Oneida Street bridge complex, are faulty.

Starting at 9 a.m. Tuesday, Oneida Street will be closed to northbound traffic through the Flats, Keuler said. Only southbound traffic will be allowed.

Traffic will be detoured east onto S. Island Street to S. Lawe Street, a small portion of which now is closed for reconstruction.

Lawe Street to Open

Keuler said the stretch of Lawe Street under repair, the hill from Riverside Paper Co. to E. South River Street, will be opened to two-way traffic starting at 9 a.m. Tuesday, to coincide with the Oneida Street closing. Reconstruction work will be held up on Lawe Street pending work on the Oneida Street bridge.

Meanwhile, police are directing traffic on S. Oneida Street in the flats, during peak periods. The only major problem so far came when industrial plants in the flats closed or changed shifts late Friday afternoon. Similar problems are expected Monday afternoon.

Motorists wanting to bypass the bridge area are advised to travel the Memorial Drive or College Avenue bridges or, after 9 a.m. Tuesday, the Lawe Street bridge.

Traffic over the Memorial Drive bridge has been slowed in past weeks as a result of sandblasting and painting operations on the span. The slowdown could worsen when Memorial Drive is forced to carry some of the increased traffic load resulting from the present closing of the Lawe Street bridge and one-way traffic on Oneida Street.

Motorists traveling the southern sector of Oneida Street have experienced problems resulting from pipeline construction.

As 11:55 P.M. traffic in the Industrial Flats isn't bad enough weekdays, the dilemma was multiplied Friday with the partial closing of a sector of the S. Oneida Street bridge under which supports are collapsing. The top photo gives an indication of the resulting rush-hour traffic slowdown on the Oneida Street hill. A three-inch settling of the span is revealed in the other photo. (Post-Crescent Photos)

Former HEW Head Makes Appeal Social Worker Crusade Urged

BY TOM TORINUS
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MILWAUKEE — "What are we thinking of as a nation, when we go backward rather than forward in dealing with the crises of our cities?" Dr. Arthur S. Fleming, former U.S. secretary of health, education and welfare, asked here Friday.

Fleming implored 1,200 welfare workers to dedicate themselves to a political crusade to bring about reforms in the welfare system.

He spoke to the annual convention of the Wisconsin Public Welfare Association.

Vast Changes
Pointing to the vast changes proposed in the nation's public welfare system by the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders (Kerner Commission), on March 1, 1968, Fleming said there has been

"no progress" on the recommendations.

Fleming is a director of the Urban Coalition, a private organization that recently published "One Year Later," a progress report on Kerner Commission recommendations.

Positive action by the U.S. Supreme Court in ruling that states' residency requirements in granting welfare are unconstitutional has been offset by negative actions in the Congress, he said. He pointed to restrictive amendments to welfare laws passed in 1968.

And the nation is no closer to a guaranteed annual wage or some other income maintenance system, he said.

Progress Lack
Deplored the nation's lack of progress, he said, "We have no real national commitment to doing something about the crises that exist in our cities."

He added, "The most affluent nation in the history of the world is unwilling to tax itself to cure its ills. We've got to do something about this."

But he said nothing would be done unless welfare workers themselves, as individuals and through their professional organizations, became political activists.

Welfare workers must bear a major responsibility for the failure to change the present system, he said. "We really have not been willing to correct the conditions about which we complain."

Those employed in the public welfare system should point out its problems to civic groups in the community, ask these groups to read the Kerner Commission recommendations, then ask these civic groups also to become politically active.

Defending the Kerner Commission's findings, Fleming said they come from "a cross-section of the leadership of this nation." He added, "Certainly the trust of the recommendations is in the right direction."

The Kerner Commission proposed a wide range of changes in the current system of categorical aids. One of the key recommendations is for an income supplement system which would provide welfare grants to working persons who are below minimum income levels, and also provide grants to unemployed persons who are not parents.

In addition the commission asks measures to raise the level of assistance and provide uniform national standards, increase the federal government's share of the welfare program, create new incentives to work and improve social services to the poor.

"The recommendations ask for implementation of the rights of the poor; they do not ask for privileges," he pointed out. He said every poor person in the nation is entitled to guaranteed minimum income and a minimum of social service.

In the end, Fleming predicted, these rights of the poor will not be fulfilled until the country returns to the commandment, "Love thy neighbor as thyself."

"If we violate this commandment, there are bound to be disastrous consequences," he said.

Just providing a minimum national standard for present welfare clients would cost heavily, Schmidt pointed out. Some states provide only 8 per month per person, he said, while others provide up to $71 per month under AFDC. Some states add only 15 per cent to federal welfare allotments, while others add 45 per cent. No state provides for all of a person's basic necessities.

The federal government also needs to spend more to expand the Office of Economic Opportunity's programs of experimentation, he said. "We are not doing enough to really find out what programs work best in helping the poor," he added.

The model cities program also must be expanded, he said, to emphasize the interrelationship of all the factors which cause poverty and the programs designed to help the poor.

Schmidt also discussed the cuts in his departmental budget proposed by the joint finance committee. The cuts, he told the welfare workers, "will make a whole lot of difference in the tools and the capacity that you have to carry on."

He indicated that the welfare workers should contact their state legislators and seek political support for restoration of the programs that have been cut.

One of the reasons for the legislature's attack on the welfare budget has been lack of public understanding of the state welfare system, he stated.

"We have passed up too many chances to improve public understanding," he said.

Schmidt Questions Costs Guaranteed Income Hit

Post-Crescent Staff Correspondence

MILWAUKEE — Like a number of other speakers, Wilbur Schmidt, secretary of the State Department of Health and Social Services, told a welfare workers meeting here Friday that a guaranteed annual income system is imminent.

But unlike the others, Schmidt had some criticisms of such a system, which would completely reform the current structure of public welfare.

He pointed out to members of the Wisconsin Public Welfare Association that a guaranteed annual income would add working men and women to the welfare rolls if their income was below a minimum national standard of about $3,300.

Schmidt said he was bothered that the welfare system might be expanded to include these new groups when those already on the rolls are not getting enough for a decent subsistence. Present welfare clients are "the poorest of the poor," he said.

Limited Funds
There will be no massive input of federal money into the welfare system in the next few years, Schmidt predicted. He said there would be no extra money in the budget for the 1969-70 fiscal year, and only about $2 billion in the following year.

He suggested that these limited funds be used to raise the minimum levels of assistance under present categories.

The recipients, the taxpayers and welfare officials themselves are all complaining about the present system of categorical aids, he said. "But if it is such an abysmal failure, why has it been around for 30 years?"

Millions of families have been helped by the system, he added. The administrative features of a guaranteed annual income or income supplement program, also "bothers me a great deal," Schmidt said. He pointed out that checks would be sent directly to most welfare clients by the federal government, much like Social Security checks. Checks are now issued by the state and delivered to welfare clients by county welfare departments.

New Practice
The new practice would sever the relationship of the county departments with welfare clients, Schmidt indicated, making it more difficult to provide social services to those who need them. One of the common advantages cited is the elimination of costly social services and administrative costs. "It raises a question whether the needs of the people for more than bread would not really stand out," he said.

Schmidt served on a task force appointed by President Nixon to recommend reform in the welfare laws. The task force has recommended retaining present categorical aids, and setting uniform national standards for the level of aids.

The recommendations were well received, he said, but recently in Washington there had been "a slight change in the wind," which is now blowing in favor of a guaranteed annual income. "At the moment it is the most attractive," he said.

Whatever the future of the system, the federal government must bear a larger share of the costs, the state official said. "The federal government has impounded the tax system," he said, and taxation for welfare costs is at the stretching point at the state and local levels. He called for a "massive" federal program.

Just providing a minimum national standard for present welfare clients would cost heavily, Schmidt pointed out. Some states provide only 8 per month per person, he said, while others provide up to $71 per month under AFDC. Some states add only 15 per cent to federal welfare allotments, while others add 45 per cent. No state provides for all of a person's basic necessities.

The federal government also needs to spend more to expand the Office of Economic Opportunity's programs of experimentation, he said. "We are not doing enough to really find out what programs work best in helping the poor," he added.

The model cities program also must be expanded, he said, to emphasize the interrelationship of all the factors which cause poverty and the programs designed to help the poor.

Schmidt also discussed the cuts in his departmental budget proposed by the joint finance committee. The cuts, he told the welfare workers, "will make a whole lot of difference in the tools and the capacity that you have to carry on."

California Cycle Mishap, 2-Car Crash Friday Claim Lives

A 77-year-old Oshkosh man and a 26-year-old man formerly of Neenah died as a result of traffic accidents Friday.

Ernest I. Beattie, 4696 Winneconne Road, Oshkosh, was involved in a two-car crash on County Trunk A four miles north of Oshkosh. He died at 1:10 a.m. today at Mercy Medical Center.

James Bart, Maywood, Calif., was killed in a motorcycle accident in California. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bart, 227 E. Doty Ave., Neenah.

Winnebago County Coroner Art Miller ruled that Beattie died of head injuries.

His wife, Mrs. Minnie Beattie, 78, who was a passenger in the car Beattie drove, is in serious condition at Mercy. She has head and leg injuries.

Crossing Road
Winnebago County police said Beattie was driving east on Sunnyside Road and was crossing County Trunk A about 5:28 p.m. when his car was struck by a car driven by Mrs. Jean A. Frank, 58, 634 Jackson St., Neenah. Mrs. Frank was driving south on County Trunk A.

Mrs. Frank was taken to Mercy with leg injuries. Her husband, Philip Frank, 65, a passenger, suffered a bump on his head.

Bart's mother said she was informed of her son's death in a phone call from California authorities about 8:30 p.m. Friday. No details of the accident were given.

Bart was a native of Neenah, and graduated from Neenah High School.

He is survived by his parents and a sister.

Westor Funeral Home, Neenah, is in charge of arrangements.

Three other persons were killed on state roads.

Court Fails to Rule On Picket Restraints

BY WILLIAM C. CAREY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MILWAUKEE — The Fox Cities' nine-month ready mix strike wound up in district federal court Friday but the proceedings produced no new fireworks.

The regional office of the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB), through its prosecution division, asked the court to restrain two Appleton unions from picketing U. S. 41 road and bridge construction sites.

Teamsters Local 563 and Operating Engineers Local 139 have been on strike against the severe-member Fox Valley Contractor Material Suppliers Association since July 29, 1968.

What had been expected to be a day-long trial resulted in a 90-minute session at the federal building where Federal Judge Myron Gordon received stipulations from union and NLRB attorneys, heard one witness and gave both sides until Tuesday to file memorandums.

Judge Gordon did not hint when he would render a decision on whether or not a temporary restraining order should be issued to halt the unions from picketing jobsites.

Prime Contractor
Courtney & Plummer, Inc., Neenah, a member of the strike bound association, is the prime contractor on the U. S. 41-W. College Avenue overpass job west of Appleton.

In a previous NLRB trial examiner's decision, it was held the unions were in violation of the Labor Act by engaging in so-called secondary picketing.

The union defense is that because sub-contractors are contract bound to obtain materials from Courtney and Plummer and have "a closer than normal relationship" — there is an allied situation which makes them all one and subject to picketing.

While the NLRB has said otherwise, it is now up to the court to give a legal ruling.

Many of the details related to the strike, which were brought out in past NLRB trials over a period of several months, were included in the stipulations.

Depositions from union members and employees of the various firms on the U. S. 41 project were also submitted, eliminating the need to take testimony from each.

Lone Witness
The lone witness to testify for the federal government (NLRB) was Charles Plummer. Attorney Dennis Selby and Joseph Szabo presented the NLRB's case. Attorney Joseph Meli, Madison, representing the association, was also present.

It was disclosed that work resumed on the U. S. 41 project last week after Courtney and Plummer replaced Ed Kraemer and Son, one of the main subcontractors. The Wunderlich firm of Appleton was brought in by Courtney and Plummer, the latter now also doing the subcontractor's work.

If an injunction is issued against the unions, or the strike is settled, Plummer indicated that Kraemer would be brought back on the job.

The State Highway Department okayed the replacement of the Kraemer firm.

Attorneys David L. Uelmen and Allan Levy, Milwaukee, representing the unions, held that the portable reserve gates used at the job sites of association members, including the 41 project, were "artificial" and alleged they circumvented the clause in the Labor Act.

Under such circumstances, they contended, the unions had a right to picket Courtney & Plummer and other firms on the job.

The "secondary picketing" claim by the association and NLRB is the key issue in the litigation.

In the meantime, negotiations for both sides in the long dispute are set to participate in a mediation session June 2. They met earlier in the week in Appleton.

Appleton Woman Gets Conservation Award

Club submitted Mrs. Williams as its nominee for the conservation award, for her work in Mrs. Lloyd Williams, 845 E. College Ave., received the Wisconsin Federation of Women's Clubs award for outstanding work in youth activities in the field of conservation at the Federation's 72nd annual convention held in Milwaukee. She was one of seven women honored at the Thursday luncheon.

Mrs. Williams was selected by an awards committee consisting of representatives from the U. S. Forest Service, the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources, the University of Wisconsin College of Agriculture, the University Extension Division and Trees for Tomorrow, Inc.

This was the 12th year that the Wisconsin Federation has been honoring women for their achievements and efforts in the field of conservation.

The Appleton Junior Woman's

Mrs. Williams educating children and adults about conservation.

In 1963 she approached businesses and industries in the Fox Cities for funds to provide scholarships so area teachers could attend a conservation camp. Fifteen teachers were able to attend camp that first year because of her efforts, with 30 attending the following year. She has personally carried on this scholarship program for 4 years and plans to continue.

Mrs. Williams feels that her two most important projects in the field of conservation education are her involvement and work with Girl Scout leaders and Conservation Day in Outagamie County.

Trains Leaders
Her work with the Girl Scouts each year is mainly to train Scout leaders regarding the outdoors and conservation.

Mrs. Williams works as one of eight guides for The Outagamie County sixth Grade Soil Conservation and Resource Use Field Trip, which is held each fall for all sixth graders in the county, at the Bruce Purdy Farm, Apple Hill. She is a guide for the Ecology Station, working with the students each year.

Other women who received awards were Mrs. Alan Lillie, Milwaukee; Mrs. Betty Hansen, Lake Geneva; Mrs. Mark Moore, Shorewood; Mrs. Eugene Dahl, Milwaukee; Mrs. Edgar Miske, Allenton; and Mrs. Laurel D. Phelps, Beloit.

Fire That Started under the hood destroyed this 1957 auto owned by Mrs. William Behm, route 1, Pine River. The auto caught fire Friday afternoon on

Curtis Tarr to Say Goodbye
To Lawrence at Graduation

Curtis W. Tarr, president of Lawrence University and recently appointed assistant secretary of the Air Force for manpower and reserve affairs, has been named the principal speaker for the university's 120th commencement exercises, June 15.

It will be his last formal appearance as president of the 122-year-old liberal arts institution.

Tarr has served Lawrence as its 12th president for six years and will leave two days after the 10:30 a.m. graduation ceremonies for Washington where he will be sworn into office.

Tarr assumed the Lawrence presidency in 1963, succeeding Dr. Douglas M. Knight. He came to Lawrence from Stanford University where he served as director of summer sessions, assistant dean for the school of Humanities and Sciences and as a lecturer. He had received his bachelor's degree from Stanford in 1948 following his discharge from the U.S. Army. In 1950 he received his M.B.A. degree with distinction from Harvard University and in 1962 was awarded his Ph. D. in American history from Stanford.

Consolidation
Shortly after assuming his post as president of Lawrence, Tarr began negotiation for the consolidation of Lawrence and Milwaukee-Downer colleges. The two institutions became Lawrence University in 1964 and this year's graduating seniors received very little publicity during the years he has been on the merger.

The university was to experience many changes during the Tarr administration. A major reorganization of the board of trustees, the first since the time of Lawrence's eighth president, Henry Wriston, and a study of the goals and purposes of the institution by the select committee on planning were implemented by Tarr.

Lawrence's academic offerings assumed broader dimensions under Tarr leadership. An overseas study center in Germany and an association with Classical Studies in Rome were established. This year proposals for a Spanish seminar in Madrid, a French seminar in Paris, and a Slavic seminar involving travel and study throughout eastern Europe and Russia were approved. A master of music education program at the Conservatory of Music and several courses relating to community problems were added to the curriculum during the Tarr administration.

Responsibility, Not Unrest
The wave of student unrest that enveloped college and university campuses did not engulf Lawrence during the Tarr administration. Student responsibility superseded student unrest as administrators, faculty and students worked together to expand car privileges, adopt a demonstration policy, establish dormitory regulations, develop campus social life and create a government council representatives.
